From the Pilitburgh Commercial.

W. Milnor Roberts, Esq., who was chosen by Jay Gooke & Co., to make an exploration of the proposed Northern Pacific Railway route, has written a letter from Jocks river, Montana Territory, dated August 8th, in which he confirms the previous favorable reports of the practicability of the route. In fact Messrs, Jay Cooke & Co., who have the financial management of the enterprise, are so well satisfied with the reports of the exploring party that they will at once inaugurate measures for the prosecution of the work. Mr. Roberts, in his last letter, speaks in glowing terms of, the fertility of the soil along the route traversed between Walla Walla and Spokam river, where 'cattle range all winter without necessity for other food or housing;' where wheat, rye, barley, oats, and all our vegetables grow in great perfection, and where apples, pears, plums and grapes attain larger sizes and as fine flavor as those of the East. Without speaking definitely respecting the ground for railroad purposes until he reaches the summit of the Rocky Mountains, he says:

salinand purposes until he reaches the summit of the Rocky Mountains, he says:

"I have taken my own way of making notes, and my own way of reflecting upon the whole question of this railroad route from the Pacific Ocean to the aummit of the Rocky Mountains; and I purposely avoid sending you any random statements. In a general way I may say that I am satisfied that there is a practical railroad route from Pages Sound, and from the mouth of Columbia river, in the toyley of Columbia, to this place, with favorable grades and curvature, without very great cost per mile; and that a large portion of the route lies through for near to a country good either for the finest grazing or for agricultural purposes, and much of it through the best timbered region I have ever seen. Notwithstanding that I am prepared to make the above statement, it will be incumbent upon me as an engineer to present the matter much more in detail when treating of router; yet I regard the above as embracing an important present the matter much more in detail when treating of routes; yet I tegard the above as embracing an important general fact. There are miles of the road which will be very coatly and troublesome, but there are so many favorable miles that I am warranted in going as far as I bave in the preceding attements; but I desire particularly that you should not understand me as expressing an opinion in favor of any particular route.

expressing an opinion in favor of any particular route.

Referring to the rivers passed in their explorations, Mr. Roberts says the Clark's Fork of the Columbis is a noble river, averaging from seven hundred to one thousand feet in width, and having even at its lowest stages an immense volume of water. It is as large as the Ohio between Pittsburgh and Wheeling, but has more than six times the water flow. The Flathead river, one of its main branches, is from five hundred to seven hundred feet wide, with a volume of water at its lowest stage more than three times that of the Ohio at low water, and is navigable for eighty miles in one stretch at a medium stage.

In a brief letter, dated Deer Lodge City, August 13th Mr. Roberts says; 'The country, as far as we have come, is remarkably favorable for the enterprise.'

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.

* * * The first dispatch was received during the second seasion of the Regular-Board of Brokers. A general feeling of disgust was experienced.
The greater part of the men had been betting on the Harvards and would not believe the story. They said the news had arrived too soon to be relied on.
The minority, who had bet from 60 to 100 on Oxford, were jubilant.
An hour alterward EsRoy Nicholas, a member of the Board, entered flourishing a dispatch, and approached the Frestoent's eses, followed by a wildlyexotied crowd. He announced himself as possessing the copy of a telegram which he had received from a most trustworthy source in the Long Room.

He then read it, to the effect that the Oxfords had lost it by three lengths. A scene of insane delight then ensued, unparalleled in the history of even that lively spot. Every better on the Harvards one-erd himself hoarse, swung his hat till the rim was hopelessly destroyed, and out pigeon wings without number. Old George Henriques, the veteran favorite of the Board was discovered frantical ly embracing Frank Wallace. Bob Waller, an Englishman, who is on the managing committee, and who is always telling members to put their cigars out, had his hat pushed over his spee, and a dozen clouds blown in his face. Ned Van Schalck and John Bonmer, another Englishman, backed off into a simultaneous spar, and a tail

Into a simultaneous spar, and a tail chap, name unknown, tried to lift Ned Stedman by the seat of his breeches. It was long before the matter cooled down was long before the matter cooled down.

In the Gold Rooms, betters on the Harvards were as numerous, in proportion, as in the Broker's Board, and the scene was the same, if not intensified. Harry Heizer, a fat fellow, jumped, in a fit of enthusiasm, upon the back of Eugene Rubino, a little chap, and everybody made a speech, of which nobody heard a word. There was a general din of shouts, whistles and yells. The doorkeeper was carried away by the general jolity, and forgot to guard his door, and a number of outsiders consequently got in, who swelled the pervading chorus.

In less than an hour, however, information came that the Associated Press knew nothing of the Harvard victory, and the high spirits wiited accordingly.

Early in the day the crowd around the Falls was far from small, and by noon the excursion trains on the Great Western and Lake Huron Railroads had brought thousands of people, all anxlous to see the man ride over the Falls in a velocipede. But the show was not at the Falls at all, but below

THE 'VELOCIFEDE' AND THE ROPE.

The machine used by Professor Jenkins is not in any sense a velocipede. It is, however, a bicycle, and turned upside down would resemble in some degree a modern velocipede. The wheels, three inches wide, are made heavy and of wood without tires, but in their places are grooves one and three-quarter inches deep. The front wheel is three feet two inches and the hind wheel two fest ten inches in diameter. The connecting rods are iron, so also the balance pole, which is eight feet long and tipped with ten-pound balls, and weighs twenty-eight pounds. The whole thing, with the man thrown in, weighs 298 pounds. The propelling power is a plaion cog-wheel made of brass, about nine inches in diameter, which is made to gear to cogs which surround the front wheel at the bottom of the groove.

It was supposed, naturally enough, that a man riding across the Niagara river on a single rope would draw a large crowd of people to the Falls; but it costs money to buy ropes and build fences; and those interested solicited aubscriptions to defray expenses. The amount raised on both sides of the river was $130, of which the Eigin House gave $50. It was also agreed that haif the receipts at the bridge should go to the performer. The expenses were about $1,000, the rope alone costing $350.

The 1,000 feet of good two-inch hemp should go to the performer. The expenses were about $1,000, the rope slone costing $359.

The 1,000 feet of good two-inch hemp rope stretched across the chasm, 200 feet above the boiling flood, was the first object to be gazed upon by the crowd, but you could not reach it without paying 25 cestas, which a great many did, and were rewarded by a close inspection. The cable was fast-ened securely and immovably on the American shore, but on the Canada shore coiled around a windlass to facilitate tightening, and then twisted and tied around a couple of cedar stumps. The deflection of the rope was about thirty feet. Photographers were early on the ground and secured the best locations for their cameras. In great variety and at low prices, Kid trioves, a full line of best quality, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00. Fancy Gloves—A general assortment at almost any price. HOW IT WAS DONE.

At 2:39 o'clock the Profesor made his appearance at the small house on the Canada side with thepleces of his machine, and at once proceeded to put them together, a task of no small labor. With the aid of his men he first placed the fore wheel on the rope just at the edge of the precipice, and while one man balanced it, another placed on the standard from the under side, thus bringing two strong bars of iron on either side of the rope. All the joints were securely fastened with bolts. The braces or connecting rods extending from the standard to the rear shaft in the form of the letter O made the connection complete and very strong. The the form of the letter O made the connection complete and very strong. The Professor then got outside of the rope, arranged the pinion wheel and fastened the balance pole across the O part of the braces. This done, the seat, a strip of leather, was secured to the rear axie by means of straps. This arrangement, which it was seen at once would throw the entire weight of the machine and the rider under the rope, was a source of disappointment, if not of relief, to many or the speciators, not consulting the inventive genius of the Canadiau Blondin, rather expected to see him mounted on a Greenwood velocipade, which, of course, would give a good chance for ground and lofy tumbling.

MURMUES,
All being in readiness, the bicycle
was fastened by a rope to the bank,
and Jenkins, who had superintended
all the operations, started for his hotel to robe. During his absence the crowd viewed the machine critically, and murmurs of 'humbug,' 'sold,' 'who couldn't,' &c., were heard, but as a general thing the crowd were pleased with the ingenious method in which the great dancer supposed to be involved

general thing the crowd were pleased with the ingenious method in which the great danger supposed to be involved in the undertaking had been avoided. By this time the people who had been pouring in on excursion trains from all parts of Canada, had assembled in convenient localities for observation, to the number of perhaps 8,000.

The lion made his second appearance at 3:30 'ciock, dressed for the performance. He wore white tights, black velvet knee breeches, shoulder straps and cross belts of the same material, and on his head was placed a crown shaped hat; and all were profusely bedecked with times and beads. His feet were covered with buff moccasions. Before alighting from the carriage, Jenkins stopped and talked with our reporter; but there was a little nervousness apparent about his seyes and mouth which, perhaps, was caused by over smoking, or the enormous quid of tobacco he was seen to bite from a borrowed plug.

rowed plug. We gave him: a word of encouragement, and he at once took his position astride the rope and proceeded to arrange the leather strap or seat, which, as it was allowed to touch the rope, seemed more for the purpose of protecting the velvet pants from damage by stirition than to sit upon. In fact, he did not sit, but stood up with his feet about eighteen inches apart, restling on the balance pole. In a moment he grasped the handles of the pinion wheel, and turned them, moving slowly from the bank, the crowd preserving a death-like stillness. After passing out a few yards a bait was mane, and the photographers were allowed to take his picture. He then returned and waited five or ten minutes and resumed flus seat. Three pistel shots were fired from the Canadian side, and it was a

The machine moved slowly forward, the rope "swaying gently from side to side unfil he had passed out about fifty feet, when another opportunity was given the artist, after which he crawled along at a snall's pace to the middle of the abyas, where he raised and walved his hat, and received a faint cheer in response. From the centre to the American shore it was evidently liard work to propel the bloyole, but at last the edge of the cliff was reached, and then the welkin did ring with the applause of the people. The time occurred in the same of the people. oled in passing over the rope was just eleven minutes,
